Plunger Olympics

Plunger Olympics
 If you're going for more of a red neck theme instead of a barn party, you can make up all kinds of games using plungers.

- Ring toss on the plunger
- Unrolling toilet paper race with the toilet paper roll on the plunger
- Using the plungers as gloves to catch balls being tossed
- Get creative!

DECORATIONS

- Christmas lights are a must.
- Hay bales are great- try and get them donated, but if not, you can probably get 30 for $100.
- Checkered table cloths
- Tons of ideas on Pinterest

GAMES/MIXERS

Finger Countin'
 Use your skit characters to do a funny game sell about how their mama taught them to count and add. Stand back to back, each person holding out one hand. On that hand they can hold out no fingers, 1, 2, 3, 4, or all 5. When they turn around (on the count of 3) they add the fingers together with their opponents. First one to yell the correct sum moves on to the next round.

Seed Spittin'
 Kids race to cut open a pumpkin, pull out the seeds and spit them towards their partners who are holding a plastic jack-o-lantern. The one with the most seeds after 90 seconds (with loud music playing in the background) is the winner.
 You can also spit sunflower seeds into a cowboy hat.

Cricket Spitting

- Go to PetSmart to get crickets. Buy 30 medium sized. Buy them an hour or so before class so they stay alive. You don't need a cage, you can keep them in the bag, just make sure they get some air.
- Set the game up by getting 6 brave volunteers, 3 guys and 3 girls. Do a spit-off and see who can spit a cricket the farthest. Mark the spot the cricket lands. Have a gal go, then a guy, then a gal, etc... Take the top 2 and have them do a championship round.
- After you crown a winner, have the skit character hosting the game stick 10 crickets in their mouth and do a 'machine gun style' spit!
